

GO WITH THE ...

Flowing? Are you talking about Flow & Ingy from Amsterdam? That crazy, wild, energetic, nicely disturbed DJ couple, that's always dancing and partying with the crowd? HELL YEAH!

It was a magical moment in Amsterdam's club "Melkweg", when a pretty blond girl wearing an out-of-place blouse met a drunk DJ called Flow. He poured her some vodka and kissed her in the neck. She tasted salty from all the dancing. They made out on the dance floor and rock-n-rolled all night... The girl was named Ingy, and together they started organizing small, illegal underground parties. Flow however, was always trying to convince Ingy to start mixing as well. And finally, at a nice afterparty at his place in the winter of 2008, she was brave enough to take it on. She turned out to be very talented and to have great feeling for the music. They decided that from then on they should play together, and Flowing was born.

TRUE or FALSE?

Ingy plays piano and she loves to sing. She has the voice of a 73 year old crooner who smoked 2 packs of cigarettes and drank a bottle of scotch every day of his life, so she's not your average Norah Jones. Flow played piano and bluesharp in some jazz and blues bands and even performed live on Beale street in Memphis, Tennessee – home of the blues. – TRUE!

Both having a musical background, Flow & Ingy felt like they should be doing more than just playing other peoples music. So they took on producing. Flowing released their first EP "The Bluesman", with a Lauhaus remix, in June 2009 at Andre Crows brand label "Vivid Recordings". Played by Karotte, Derrick May, Simon Baker, Luna City Express, MEAT, and many more, it was a great success. The piano and organ in the tracks were played and recorded live by Flowing and since July 2010, Flowing manages Vivid Recordings – TRUE!

Ingy practised ballet for 12 years, so she knows her moves. One time, during a set, she jumped out of the DJ booth right on top of the huge woofer and danced with the crowd... she mixed in the next track from the wrong side of the booth and just continued dancing, and the people (especially the guys) loved it. – TRUE!

On the 28th of May 2008, Flow & Ingy married and officially became Flowing. It was a beautiful day and an amazing "Berlin roaring 20's style" dinner and party in in the famous bar-restaurant-club 11 (RIP) in Amsterdam. – TRUE!

At the "Gouden Kabouter Awards 2010" (the Dutch "Oscars for the dance scene") Flowing was nominated for best DJ duo and Ingy won the award for "Most Sexy DJ" – TRUE!

Flowing adopted two party parrots, a boy and a girl, who always travel with them. The parrots are totally crazy, and dance to the music all night long. After a couple of vodka shots they scream of pleasure: WRAAH! WRAAAH – TRUE!

At their infamous afterparties, Flowing sometimes do crazy livesets in which they sing and use real instruments. No more information about this can be given, but if you ask the right people... you might get to know more or even see a video! – TRUE!

With their typical groovy, deep but always funky sound, Flowing already rocked dancefloors all over Europe and beyond. At Thaibreak, Harry Klein in Munich, U60311 in Frankfurt, Paradiso in Amsterdam, Arena Club / Glasshaus, Club der Visionaere, Bar 25, Golden Gate, Horst and Tape in Berlin, Welcome to the Future Festival, Summerwave Festival... and the list goes on. Ofcourse you can find them most often in their favourite club, Studio 80 in Amsterdam where they are residents of the "24 hour party people" parties. In 2011, they will continue creating dancefloor mayhem wherever they go - TRUE!

Flowing organized the Club Krang parties in Amsterdam, with people like Lauhaus, Livio & Roby, Ripperton, Boris Werner, Nick Curly, Julietta, Polder, MEAT, Andre Crom, Junction SM (Dandy Jack & Sonja Moonear), and many many more. - TRUE!
